Dr. Peter McCullough says what many never realized: mRNA injections didn't originate with Pfizer, Moderna, or Operation Warp Speed, they trace back to U.S. military and DARPA research dating as far back as 2012, a full decade before COVID.

This wasn't a spontaneous "medical miracle," it was a pre-existing government-backed platform fast-tracked during a global crisis.

When something is developed under military frameworks, secrecy, speed, and compliance matter more than transparency or long-term safety.

That raises serious questions about consent, accountability, and how much the public was ever told.

The narrative is cracking, and people are finally asking who was really in control from the start.
